Despite the incredibly strong winds, which tested out trusty Club tent, the weather stayed dry-ish for us, although Cammo was especially muddy, and with many wet leaves on the ground. Those who did brave the conditions seemed to have a good time: especially heartening to see so many families and small children participating. For me the hardest part of the day was collecting in the last of the controls in the dark.

Many thanks to the Interløper faithful who came along to help, especially Sheila, Jane, Max, Barry and Ken who were happy to help without getting a run.
